GOVERNOR RODRIGUEZ, ruling North Mexico territory, threatens to close the border, shutting out California's exports. He resents United States criticism of conditions in the dives of Nacotal and Tin Juana under Rodriguez domination. But inasmuch as United States citizens are at the same time exporters and customers of the dives, the blame certainly does not rest on Rodriguez alone. That United States citizens cross the border to gamble and get drunk in American-owned dives on Mexican soil is a United States, not a Mexican, disgrace.

MEXICANS hurt by United States criticism find comfort on the front page of that Heraldo de Mexico of this date. The Spanish language, it seems, supplies no synonym for 'wild party.' No wonder Mexico reminds us not to throw stones in glass houses."

CRONIN CONVICTED ON 3 COUNTS FOR CRIME AGAINST PAIR IN 1922

Lawrence P. Cronin, former patron of the Dorchester division, was found guilty on three counts by a jury in Suffolk Superior Criminal Court today.

After deliberating for little over an hour the jury found him guilty of attacking Mrs. Margaret E. Bowley, 34, with a loaded revolver upon her husband, Joseph Bowley, and the larceny of $40 from Bowley.

The case has been before the courts since 1923. Judge Dubuque having called a previous trial a "mistake."

Mr. and Mrs. Bowley were in the automobile early in the morning of October 29, 1923, a Savin Hill trial.

MAN SEEKS DIVORCE, WIFE ASKS GUARDIAN

Augusta, Feb. 25.—Developments of a sensational nature are expected when the cross-examination of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene E. Lebar of this city is heard. Lebar has filed an action for divorce against his wife in the Superior Court of Kennebec County, while she has come back with a petition to the probate judge of the county asking him to appoint a guardian for her husband.

Mr. Lebar did not sign the petition, but High Sheriff Henry E. Cummings of Kennebec County did. He used the legal form of designating himself as "a friend of Lebar."

This is a common practice throughout the State in cases of this kind. The lawyers in the case have the sheriff sign the petition.

In the petition it is set forth that Lebar "is a person of unsound mind by reason of infirmity and mental incapacity is incompetent to manage his own estate and to protect his rights, and is a person who by excessive drinking, gambling, dissipation and debauchery has become incapable of managing his own estate and who spends and wastes his estate as to expose himself to want and suffering, and his own to expense."

Mr. Lebar has placed an attachment of $100,000 upon his wife and money of her husband, as it stated, a protection of her rights.

DEFENSE WITNESSES DENY RED REVOLT WAS PREACHED BY BIMBA

Brooklyn, Feb. 26.—A third letter threatening death to Associate Prosecuting Attorney Joseph Veracka, and prophesying the destruction of all churches and the American flag, was received by Veracka today as the defense opened in the trial of Anton Bimba, charged with blasphemy and sedition.

The threat came by mail from Portland, Me., was written in English and read as follows:

"Dear you, let Bimba alone."

"We will burn your house some night and get you. The threat comes soon for us workers to strike. Then we will burn all the churches and all U. S. flags, and Trotsky will come to us."

CHELSEA CASE HALTED; ATTY. FEENEY IS ILL

The Chelsea rum conspiracy trial at Federal Court was today adjourned until Tuesday morning owing to the serious illness of Attorney John P. Feeney, counsel for Mayor Lawrence P. Quigley of Chelsea and his brother, Inspector Thomas Quigley.

When court was scheduled to open today it was reported that Attorney Feeney, who has been in poor health for about two weeks, had collapsed last night and was running a temperature of 104.

It was stated that he had been on duty for 12 hours by a physician and would very likely be forced to remain there for several days.

As a result, Judge Brewster ordered an adjournment over the weekend, with the probability the case will not be concluded before Wednesday or Thursday.

This was the second holdup in two days, a suspension occurring yesterday until 1 o'clock, because Eli Weinstein, one of the defendants, had sprained his ankle the night before and was confined to his home in Chelsea.

POLICE HUNT CORBETT GIRL ON MYSTERY TIP

Springfield, Feb. 25.—The search for Alice M. Corbett, Smith College girl, who disappeared last November, was given new impetus today by a letter received by Chief of Police John A. Demers of West Springfield, field.

As a result of the letter he visited two hospitals in West Springfield, and then began a search through various nursing homes.

The letter, believed to have been sent from Smith College, though the chief did not corroborate this report, said the Utica girl was being hidden.

The hospitals the chief visited are private institutions, one conducted by Mrs. Mary Hickey in Main street, the other by Mrs. Alice Strong in Elm street.

While the general public has forgotten about the strange disappearance of the girl, the State police have never given up the search nor have the private detectives engaged by her father, a Utica, N. Y., merchant. The offer of $1,000 reward for her discovery still stands.

INJUNCTION BALKS STRIKE PICKETING AT SCENE OF RIOTING

GIRLS PLAN RETURN TO JOB

Peace Parleys Under Way as Police Hunt Two; Federal Arbitrator Calls Meeting

The "breaks" went a bit against the striking garment workers today, one setback coming in the form of a court injunction against picketing; the other declaration by some strikers that they will return to work Monday, come what may.

Meanwhile arbitrators sought to mend the broken stitches, mediators were opened by the strikers in the Hotel Brewster, where those employers who wish may make individual peace overtures, and a mass meeting was held at strike headquarters.

The injunction was a direct result of yesterday's brief rioting that began in front of the establishment of S. Shapiro & Co., No. 53 1/2 Washington street.

PICKETING ORDERLY. Officials of this concern, a non-union shop, succeeded in obtaining a court ban on picketing in front of its premises, and it was understood other employers will attempt to follow suit.

Bulletins from the strikers' officials were slow today, Julius Hochman, the vice-president and organizer, being reported still asleep three hours after he had ordered his strikers to be out on the picket line.

The strikers declare the walkout to be 100 per cent, but this claim is denied by the manufacturers, who point to the fact that many workers are still at their benches, and machines.

PEACE IN SIGHT.

Picketing in the street area, which started here too peacefully yesterday, was certainly peaceful today, no disorders being reported as the local workers went in and out of the shops.

Although the strikers have taken a vote to hold out until their every demand is met, it is thought the matter may be settled by arbitration today.

John Doe warrants were obtained by the police of the La Grange street station for two men said to have been implicated in assaults in connection with the strike.

WARRANTS FOR TWO.

Morris Koshmer, 31, of Loxwood street, Dorchester, was arrested on a charge of passing out circulars. His case was placed on file.

The assaults for which the warrants were issued are alleged to have taken place at Beach and Washington streets.

Miss Ann Walcott, appointed by Secretary of Labor Davis to act as conciliator, after conferring with representatives of the strikers and the employers, announced she had called a meeting for 2 o'clock this afternoon at Hotel Avenue.

It was announced by Benjamin Mordant, chairman of the Boston joint board of the local unions of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, that he will make a complaint to Governor Fuller in regard to the action and attitude of some of the policemen on strike duty.

Two leaders of the warring factions gave out contradictory statements. While S. Shapiro predicted that all the workers would be back at their benches by Monday, Mr. Hochman said that the strike has only begun.

A canvass of the non-union shops showed them working at about 90 per cent of normal, it was said.

K. OF C. WANTS U. S. PROTEST ON MEXICO

William C. Frost, of Boston, supreme director of the Knights of Columbus, called on Secretary of State Kellogg to make vigorous protests to the Mexican government over the treatment accorded to the Catholic clergy and other religious workers in that country. He insists that despite diplomatic custom and usages that is precedent for such protest in the action of the Taft administration at the time Jews were being persecuted in Russia.

"The Catholic teaching states," said Director Frost to Boston Council K. of C., "are being driven out of Mexico, Catholic priests are being deported almost by the hundreds, Catholic churches, built and supported by the donations of Mexican Catholics, are being stolen from them by an anti-Catholic Mexican government."

"During the administration of President Taft the United States government made effective protest to the Russian government against the atrocities against Jewish people in Russia. Jewish people had been murdered and driven into exile simply because they were faithful to their religion."

"If a protest could be made to Mexico and it is the duty of the officials of the United States to take a definite stand in defense of religion in Mexico, and against unlawful conditions that exist there today as far as Mexican Catholics are concerned."

GENERAL NEWS SECTION

MARJORIE DECLARES SHE NEVER STOLE A HEART NOR WORE A FLANNEL NIGHTIE!

Mrs. Mabel Manton who is using William Kevitt Manton, actor-Marjorie, for divorce, has named Marjorie Rambeau as "other woman." She says she trapped couple in star's bedroom.

Miss Rambeau and her attorney, Bernard Sandler, in court. She insists her relations with Manton, her ex-husband, were of a strictly business nature. When raiders invaded her suite she says, "All we were doing was reading a play." She added it was nothing for actresses to do their studying at 3 a. m.

Marjorie sobs at love thief charge. She says she was in extreme distress when they interrupted the playreading. They also say Manton was sitting on edge of her bed. It was a hot night, so Manton had discarded coat and collar. "That it was perfectly proper," says Marjorie. "I never was a pirate of hearts."

No flannel "nighties" for Marjorie—not even in the hospital. Marjorie insisted on wearing her own dainty garments while filling the role of a patient in 1923. She wants to know if he stole like a vampus of untamed hands. A woman raider, however, says Marjorie were less than that. All swears it wasn't flannel.

"It's all a big joke!" Marjorie herself so brands the charge dainty garments while filling the role of a patient in 1923. She wants to know if he stole like a vampus of untamed hands. A woman raider, however, says Marjorie were less than that. All swears it wasn't flannel.

DEEDS BEDROOM VISIT OF ACTOR

Miss Rambeau Sobs in Court as Raiders Tell of Finding Her in 'Nightie'

New York, Feb. 26.—It's quite the ordinary thing, said Marjorie Rambeau, appearing in the role of co-respondent in the Manton divorce suit, for a male euclet to call at any time of day or night.

The quest, Miss Rambeau furthered a jury to Supreme Court, has the privilege, if the evening is warm, of removing his coat and collar and sitting on a leading lady's bed.

In the case Mrs. Mabel Manton is using William Kevitt Manton for a divorce. Miss Rambeau is designated as "the other woman."

The wife insists that Manton, co-respondent and secretary to Miss Rambeau, went beyond the customary limitations of his art early in the morning of August 23 last.

The trial today was replete with dramatic instances interrupted with touches of levity on the part of witnesses and attorneys. Nor were tears lacking, for Miss Rambeau at one point wept aloud and sought comfort in two handkerchiefs.

"POOH!" SAYS MARJORIE. The case was expected to reach the jury late this afternoon.

The twelve men will be asked to decide upon many intricate questions, perhaps first among them the question of authorship of a telegram which Mrs. Manton's attorney offered in evidence as having been sent by Miss Rambeau to Manton. It read:

"Darling, I love you, and nothing can keep us apart but the Harlem River. As the old country says, 'Don't be parvenus.'"

"Your love is mine," "MARJORIE RAMBEAU." The telegram was in the record.

Miss Rambeau said: "Poo!" That means nothing. "Just a huge joke," testified Manton as he took the stand later.

Mrs. Manton, however, insisted through her attorney, Warren I. Lee, that the telegram was a token of affection for her husband.

"JUST JOKE ON MANTON." The spectators listened when Albert Edward Kohn, who depicted himself as an actor and "financier of Miss Rambeau," took the stand and said:

"I wrote the telegram. Miss Rambeau was just as just as a joke on Manton. When we actors speak 'your and in crime' it means simply that we are using a stage expression."

"I wrote the telegram. I am the actor," said Kohn. "It was a good joke."

TELS ABOUT THE RAIL. That the case was serious in several aspects became evident early in the day. Bernard Sandler, attorney for Miss Rambeau, in his opening to the jury, contended:

"We will show that the 'only move of drawing Miss Rambeau into this case was for the sole purpose of extracting $100,000 from her. We will refute the whispered scandal that has been besmirching her fair name."

"Childlike as these great artists are with their disregard for convention, for here in mid great artists study while we sleep, Miss Rambeau was in bed and there sat this man beside the bed. They were at work on a part of her play."

"They say that he was scantily attired and that she wore little or nothing. The fact of the matter is, we was a hot summer's night and he was lightly, but not improperly, dressed."

Mrs. Sarah Smith Driggs of No. 12 East Thirty-fourth street, was one of the "witnesses" which entered Miss Rambeau's room in the Hotel Edmont.

She said the lights were dim, that Manton was scantily clad and that "we for as I could see, Miss Rambeau had nothing on."

JUDGE FLYNN EXCUSES JURY IN THEFT CASE

Judge George A. Flynn in Middlesex Superior Criminal Court today discharged a jury from further service in the court after they had returned a verdict of not guilty in a Cambridge robbery case.

The judge showed his disapproval of the verdict in the case of Walter Mikowski and ordered the probation officer to read the prisoner's record showing about 16 convictions.

The alleged robbery occurred on November 17 when Mikowski is alleged to have stolen $10.00 in cash and an overcoat valued at $22.50 from Mike Kavouas.

During the trial Sergeant Patrick J. Leahy of Cambridge police said the defendants had admitted a part in the robbery and that Mikowski had been identified by the victim as his assailant.

The disbarred jurors are: Warren Mead of Waltham, formerly James Cameron of Lowell, Jeremiah J. Connelly of Malden, Henry D. Cullen of Malden, Richard Dwyer of Cambridge, Asa W. Flint of Lowell, John Gordon of Somerville, Cornelius J. Lynch of Maynard, Daniel Mountain of Cambridge, Fred F. Seaver of Everett, William V. Sleeper of Framingham and John H. Tierney of Cambridge.

George Harris, who slashed his divorced wife, Ida, on Jan. 23 last in the Fenway Piano School where she was an instructor, was sentenced to 15 to 18 years in State prison today by Judge Thurston in Suffolk criminal court.

Harris was convicted of assault with intent to kill.

The Harrises were divorced some time ago. Their eight-year-old daughter, Claudia, witnessed the attack.

Harris was the chief witness against his wife. She is an attractive woman, she is married by eight slashes, and her right hand is partly paralyzed.

In the divorce case Harris said that he had not meant to kill his wife, but intended to "harm her mouth because she was always saying bad things about me."

The jury returned a guilty verdict yesterday after three hours of deliberation.

'HOUSE KILLS NICHOLS' "GREATER BOSTON" BILL

The "Greater Boston" census bill of Mayor Nichols received its quietest today in the House of Representatives. When the measure came up for a third reading it was overwhelmingly defeated. The bill was characterized by Representative Henry L. Shattuck of Boston as "a truthful proposal." Others contended that it was intended as the first step towards annexation of the cities and towns within the district.

AUTO OUTRACES COP AFTER IT HITS WOMAN

A slipping, slewing auto chase through Watertown streets today was lost by Patrolman Owens of Watertown when he was struck by a small sedan that had struck Mrs. Joseph McNamara of Watertown square.

The sedan was speeded up by its driver after the accident, and Patrolman Owens, a witness, leaped into a car and chased the fugitive.

Over the city streets the chase led, but the lead of the sedan was to great and the driver escaped without anyone obtaining the number.

Mrs. McNamara was only slightly injured.

WIFE NO. 2 HAS HER MARRIAGE ANNULLED

The story of how John P. Martin, alias Franklin R. Raymond, illegally took a second wife and lived with her a short distance from his usual place of residence was told in Suffolk Probate Court today. The story was told by Mary Elizabeth MacIntyre, Dorchester, who was granted an annulment of her marriage and permission to resume her maiden name. The young woman testified she married Martin on August 20, 1914. In April, 1921, the first wife, who was Mary C. Glavin, came to her house, she said, and Martin admitted he was married to her. The first wife took the stand for the second. She testified she married Martin in October, 1914, and two children were born in the union.

SHAMROCK BAN LIFTED, IT WASN'T TURPITUDE

The ban on shamrocks has been lifted by the Department of Agriculture, with reservations, and the shamrock may be sent in from the land for March 17.

This was disclosed today by State Senator William I. Hennessey, who has been busy for several weeks to prevent a repetition this year of last year's embargo. Senator Hennessey also received the following letter from Assistant Secretary of Agriculture C. V. Marvin:

"In answer to your letter of February 11 relative to the importation of shamrocks, you are advised that the department has authorized the entry of shamrocks without restriction, if the soil is entirely removed and the roots washed or if the leaves are cut and forwarded in suitable moist sphagnum in bags of sterile food or other preservative which will assure their safe arrival."

VERMONT WOMAN DIES

WHILE MAKING SPEECH

Bedford, Feb. 26 (A.P.)—Mrs. Edith M. Carr of Barre, Vt., died suddenly while delivering a eulogy at an entertainment here, which was due to sympathy. Her husband and two sisters were in the audience.

'DOWN WITH WATER, CRIES 'PUSSY'

Friends of John Barleycorn may not be shocked by this photo of "Pussyfoot" Johnson. The prohibition advocate has not tumbled from off the water-wagon.

He is merely wetting his whistle with his favorite beverage, water, said whiskey having been dried up by a harangue against Demon Rum at a meeting of the Anti-Saloon League at the City Club.

'LOVE WIFE' AND REAL ONE MEET IN COURT

Rival "wives" of Thomas H. Collins of Dorchester faced each other in East Boston court today in one of the strangest legal dramas ever enacted in the Middle Island jurisdiction.

Johanna Theresa Collins was the legal wife, while pretty, dainty Katharine Daves of Plymouth stood firmly on her ground that she is the "real" wife of Collins in the eyes of God. Collins and the Plymouth girl were found at the Winthrop Arms when, while Mrs. Collins, broke into the place, it was testified. The two were arraigned on statutory charges.

Lawyer Douglas of the Winthrop police told of the raid, but Attorney John J. Kelly, counsel for the defense, hoped to his feet and shouted: "There is no need of going into that. We admit all that."

counsel for Mrs. Collins, said: "If you admit all this, there is no reason for going on. You admit their guilt."

"I claim," said Attorney Kelly, "that Miss Daves is actually Collins' wife in the light of the real meaning of a marriage."

"You must realize," interrupted Judge Barrow, "that there is no such thing as common law wife in Massachusetts. I doubt if you could pull that even in New York."

Mrs. Collins testified she had married Collins in Malden a year ago, had him, and that they have a baby ten months old.

Then the Plymouth girl took the stand. She said she had lived as Collins' wife before he was married, had registered as his wife in hotels and believed firmly that in the eyes of God she is his wife.

She said that she had not learned of Collins' marriage until last Spring, but admitted she knew he was a husband and a father when he went to the Winthrop Arms with him.

CROWDED HUB HOTELS LAID TO PROHIBITION

"Pussyfoot" Johnson, hard-riding and back-sliding crusader against alcohol, who was christened William H. these long years back, has let out the secret of congested hotels in Boston.

"Pussyfoot" came out flat-footed at the luncheon of the Massachusetts Anti-Saloon League at the City Club, and declared the reason he couldn't get a $1 room on this visit was—Gee! You guessed it. Prohibition!

Here are his own words: "I believe that the crowded conditions in Boston hotels are an evidence of the property which prohibition has brought to the people of this city."

"Formerly in my travels I was able to get a room at any time for $1 a night. On my visit to Boston today I was forced to reserve a room two days in advance and have to pay four times the sum of the past charges."

"To my mind these hotel conditions prove that prohibition has done some good, because the people are spending money on something which they enjoy. Instead of going into a hotel and parking in the lobby or bar and then resting out and sleeping in the street or on the Common, they take the best rooms in the hotels."

"I believe that I have a mission," continued "Pussyfoot." "It is my opinion that I have been sent by the Lord to fight the saloon, and this I have done all my life."

SPEAKS AGAIN TONIGHT. "I am not entirely worthless, some people say I am and really believe it. I am forced to say that I disagree with them and offer this proof from Scriptural authority: 'The Lord made use of Balaam's ass to carry him into Jerusalem.'"

"That gives me my authority because if the Lord used one jack-ass, he certainly can make use of another."

Tonight "Pussyfoot" will be the principal speaker at the district convention of the World Leagues Against Alcoholism at Tremont Temple.

Speaking today at the convention, the World League Against Alcoholism, Francis W. Webster, secretary of the Episcopal Convention of Episcopal Churches of Massachusetts, feared the Rev. J. M. Pringle, D. D. of New York, an "all irresponsible free lance who does not speak for the Episcopal Church as a whole."

EPISCOPALIANS RAPPED. "There are two classes of parsons in the Episcopal Church," the speaker said. "One of them is the strongly dry class. The other class is composed of a number of faint-hearted gentlemen who dived into almsgiving and came up blowing bubbles of Scriptural authority to the effect that prohibition is anti-Christian."

BOSTON MAN TO BE PORTO RICO'S AUDITOR. Washington, Feb. 26 (A.P.)—Fredrick O. Hilditch of Boston was appointed today by President Coolidge to be auditor of Porto Rico. He succeeds William L. Keatinge of Missouri.

NEWTON MAN MUST SERVE TIME FOR DOG TORTURE

Joseph Gentile, of Newton, found guilty in Middlesex Superior Court of cruelty abusing a dog, must serve three months in the House of Correction and pay a $150, as a result of the action of the full bench of the Supreme Court today in overruling the court's exception, brought against the finding in Superior Court. He was convicted of setting a fire to a dog.

Veteran Banker Dies

SUSPECTED THIEF IS TRAPPED BY OLD SHOES

Caught through a letter and a pair of old shoes, 15-year-old George Porcetta of Schoolville avenue, Chelsea, was held for the Grand Jury by Judge Cutler in Chelsea Court today for breaking and entering and larceny, and attempted breaking and entering. He was fined at $1,000. Porcetta was arrested by Patrolman Valentine Elmore, who investigated a break in the shoe store of David Penak, No. 128 Broadway. In the store Elmore found a letter bearing the address of Porcetta's mother and an old pair of shoes. Going to Porcetta's house he found the young man wearing new shoes and claims he obtained a confession.

LOCK RADIOS TO SPEED UP COPS' WORK, BAR JAZZ

New York, Feb. 25 (A.P.)—Radio soon will supplement the present in-terdepartmental telephone system of the New York police department to speed up broadcasting of alarms and the apprehension of criminals. Every police precinct will have radio sets, linked into one city-wide unit. This will enable headquarters to broadcast alarms to all precincts simultaneously. In addition to the usual equipment, the sets are fitted with two glass dials and a buzzer signal. A red light will be thrown on one of the dials as notice headquarters is about to broadcast, and the buzzer will call those not near enough to see the light. Dials of the machines are locked at the fixed wave length of headquarters to prevent police tuning in on other stations for more entertaining programs.

ARMORY INDOOR TRACK PLAN MEETS OPPOSITION

Construction of an indoor running track at Commemorative Armory as a part of $200,000 plan was opposed today at a legislative hearing by Morris M. Blumenthal of Brighton. He declared the "armory" of the armory would not be pleasant to the public. He advised the national guard to "stick to the point" for exercise. C. F. Gorman, athletic director of the American Legion, Colonel Thomas B. Murphy and Captain Fletcher Wason favored the track. Gorman said Gen. Edward L. Logan, William C. Frost, B. Loring Young and Fred W. Moore favor it.

COOLIDGE VICTOR'S BOOSTERS

Florence Silverman, 16, is showing her younger brother, Sylvan, in their home at Brooklyn, N. Y., how Brother Matthew, the "Flatbush Flash," flashed a winning punch over on John Coolidge, "the White House Wolf," at an Amherst College tournament.

COOLIDGE RING RIVAL REJECTS $5,000 OFFER

New York Boxing Promoter Tries to Sign Up the Amherst Student for Bout

Amherst, Feb. 24.—Matty Silverman, Amherst's "Henry Leonard" who "hangs on" the eye of John Coolidge, son of the President, during a three-round boxing bout, has declined an offer of $5,000 for a series of three boxing bouts in the Pioneer Athletic Club in New York. He received the offer, supposed to have come from Lew Raymond, promoter for the club.

It is believed by many that the telegram is a hoax, sent Silverman by some Brooklyn friend. Silverman, who is from Brooklyn, N. Y., went into the 115-pound class last night today with prospects of losing. Silverman's opponent was J. W. Hughes, of Waterbury, Ct., one of the best college boxers in the country.

CAST BREAD ON WATER, AND IT BECAME A FIST

Joseph V. Milligan of No. 21 Cottage place, West Newton, receives an old adage today. Not only will he not look a gift horse in the mouth, but he will not punch a gift either in it. In Newton Court Carl Erickson charged that he saw Milligan stall in the money in his automobile. Erickson offered to assist in getting out the machine, and for thanks he received a punch in the mouth when Milligan didn't like the mixture! Dark servicable colors! Sizes 8 to 12. Milligan was fined $15 for assault and an additional $25 for driving without a license.

Interests Mussolini astiratically and practically. Through that pass the "Germanic barbarians" marched down to conquer the Italian peninsula, leaving the blue eyes and flaxen hair now conspicuous in northern Italy. Through that pass there came the northern warrior that sat dressed in his furs on the thrones of the Caesars.

And through the same pass, perhaps, in our Christian days, rode the repentant German king, when he came to stand before the Pope's window in mid-Winter humbly begging the Pope's forgiveness at Canossa.

Blissmark, in one of his rows with the Catholic Party, said, "We are not again going to Canossa." And now with Blissmark and the old Emperor in the grave, you have Mussolini, the Italian Blasphemer, threatening to carry Canossa to Berlin.

THIS IS WRITTEN on the train from California to New York. Easterners, slipping over ice and snow, will be glad to know that in the sunshine at the San Bernardino station it is almost uncomfortably hot, the fruit trees in blossom.

There is an excuse for the Eskimo who plays with his ice and snow all Winter. He doesn't know about California and heat's surface. But what excuse is there for those along the North Atlantic coast, or in the cold Middle West, that do know, have carfare and leisure, and don't come to California?

EVERYTHING IS booming and improving in California, and the greatest improvement of all, thanks largely to Hiram Johnson, is in government. "Things used to be different," says John Francis Neylan, standing in the lobby of the State Capitol at Sacramento, pointing to the magnificent heavy wood doors into the Senate and the Assembly, he tells how it used to be.

There, as the Senators solemnly marched to their seats, stood "Jerry" Burke, handing to each Senator in the ranks of his safe and sane bought majority a narrow slip of paper. Opposite the number of each he counted up was written "yes or no." And that is how they voted.

Walter Parker handed similar slips to each member of the bosses' majority in the Assembly lobby. Burke and Parker were two sub bosses under the big boss, and Lew Martin, sergeant-at-arms, kept all kinds of drinks for the shortest majority in his office nearby.

Changed are the good old days since Hiram Johnson started. He was elected Governor by 15,000. Burke and Parker vanished. Johnson was re-elected by 130,000. He was elected to the Senate by 350,000.

EVERYTHING PROGRESSES here in California, real estate, crops, good government. Come to California, see that State, and on your way, see the whole country. If you cannot come now, save up and arrange to come later. Do not come without money.

BRITON TO WED CONSTANCE TALMAGE

Screen Star's Marriage Set for Tomorrow: Romance Is Her Second One

Los Angeles, Feb. 25 (A.P.)—The Examiner says today that Constance Talmage, the film star, and Oliver McIntosh of London are to be married tomorrow at Huntington, a suburb of San Francisco.

The engagement of the couple and their intention to marry tomorrow was confirmed here, the newspaper says, by Joseph Schenck, brother-in-law of the actress.

Miss Talmage, her sister, Norma, and McIntosh are guests at the Huntington home of Mrs. St. Clair, where the wedding will be held. It will be Miss Talmage's second marriage. In 1920 she became the wife of John P. Talbot, wealthy Greek citizen, and only recently regained her American citizenship by taking out naturalization papers.

WAITING CROWD SINGS JAZZ ON GALLOWS

5,000 Gather in Delaware for the Hanging of Young Girl-Attacker

Georgetown, Del., Feb. 25.—While 5,000 men and women stood watch outside the Sussex County jail here today, Harry Butler, twenty-one-year-old negro, was hanged for an attack on Elmera Steinhart, a twelve-year-old girl. The girl was beaten and mistreated by Butler on a lonely farm near Brandywine, January 21.

During the night hundreds of persons forced their way into the jail yard and during the hanging the crowd was kept back by ropes. After the execution thousands who had waited outside were allowed to file past the open jail yard gate to view the body of the negro dangling from the rope.

As dawn the State troopers cleared the jail yard and during the hanging the crowd was kept back by ropes. After the execution thousands who had waited outside were allowed to file past the open jail yard gate to view the body of the negro dangling from the rope.

Dover, Del., Feb. 25 (A.P.)—Excitement prevailed here today as the news of an attack on Constance Talmage, a young woman living in the family of Rev. J. P. Bailey of St. Paul's M. E. Church, was made known.

The girl had been attacked by four intruders, whom she believed from their voices to be negroes, who bound her hands and feet, and a rose around her neck and ransomed the house.

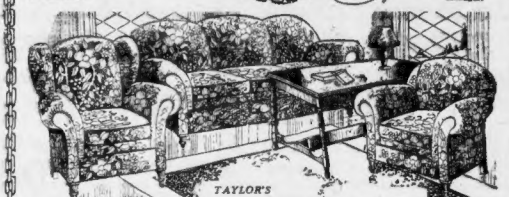

No attempt was made to otherwise attack the young woman. The crime was not known until the return of the motor and his wife from service. State police are searching for the men. For this offense the law provides a penalty of twenty lashes and ten years in prison.

BIMBA FACES DRAMATIC EVENT WHEN ASKED TO TAKE OATH

day and sent secret military, the envelope being marked "Black."

Attorney Veraska, who is a Lithuanian and lives in the Montello district of this city, where most of the witnesses for the government and for Bimba reside, was positively perturbed over the latest threat against his life.

Witnesses who laughed off the others, after first noting the Federal postal authorities, he took this threat very seriously and conferred for a long time with Judge C. Carroll King. It was learned today that an insurance agent is after Veraska to take out additional life insurance.

Bimba himself received a threatening note from Philadelphia in the evening mail.

Defense witnesses denied Bimba urged the overthrow of the United States government by force, declaring he referred entirely to Lithuania, Bimba, confident and smiling, answered:

Headaches From Slight Colds
Laxative BRUNNEN QUININE Tablets relieve the headache by stopping the cold. A Safe and Proven Remedy. The box bears the signature of E. W. GROTE. 30c—Advt.

sed court prepared to take the stand himself in defense of his alleged disposal of God and country.

FOMEN TO TESTIFY.

Several women witnesses were in court to testify for Bimba, as his counsel opened the defense.

Bimba's appearance on the witness stand where government witnesses used him as an atheist and Communist, was awaited with intense interest for the alleged blasphemy was to be asked by Clerk, Harry King in answer to find he said the truth.

Defense lawyer of Attorney Harry Hoffman indicated that Bimba said not deny that he said there was no God, thus virtually placing himself on the mercy of the court in the charge of violating the State statute of 1927, under which the surety is accused of blasphemy.

In early Massachusetts court drama makes a proven atheist in court as a witness, and since it was so rendering this decision has been framed in other cases.

BIMBA'S DEFENSE.

Bimba was expected to declare he did not preach a policy of overthrowing the government of the United States by violence, in his lecture in Brockton last month, but he said in his speech merely to overthrowing the parties in control of the government of Lithuania.

The disclaimer against him apparently the result of a row between two factions of the local Lithuanian society according to the defense, as disclosed in the questions put to government witnesses by Bimba's senior counsel.

Spectators who were lucky enough to get the few seats in the courtroom were the envy of the scores outside who expected that Bimba, once on the stand, would repeat nearly word for word his alleged blasphemous utterances, asserting in court the same view that he asserted from the lecture platform.

DEFENSE SPRINGS SURPRISE.

Attorney Harry Hoffman, senior defense counsel, sprang a surprise by calling as his first witness Anthony Zolotare, who is a complainant in the case and was one of the government's star witnesses.

Q—Did I understand you to testify for the government that you first made up your mind to come against Bimba on the morning after the lecture? A—That's right.

Q—But weren't you at the City Hall the night of the lecture for four hours before the lecture took place? A—Yes.

Q—You went there about the speech Bimba was going to make? A—Yes, I did hear him speak.

Q—You went to City Marshal Hayden to ask him to arrest Bimba on the night of the lecture? A—No, sir, no such thing.

Q—Who did you go there? A—Mr. Zolotare.

Q—Try to prevent Bimba from speaking.

Q—Didn't Mr. Hayden tell you he couldn't do anything until the offense was committed? A—No.

ENDANGLED CRIMINAL.

Q—Well, now, when you said you had no idea of complaining before the day following the lecture, that was not true, was it? A—I meant I had no idea of getting a warrant.

Q—You did not make a complaint to City Marshal Hayden before the meeting? A—No, for a warrant isn't to prevent the lecture.

Q—How did you know what Bimba was going to speak about? A—I had heard his speeches for years and knew his character.

Q—Mr. Zolotare, did you not go to Frank Manning's office, when Manning was Mayor, as a member of a committee from the Lithuanian American Citizens' Club to protest against the Mayor's preventing the lecture? A—Yes.

Attorney Hoffman left the witness with that answer and Prosecutor Rubin did not question him.

DENIES REVOLT PREACHED.

The second defense witness was Stanislaus Kraushaus, a shoemaker, who said he was a member of the Lithuanian Workers' Literary Society and had been expelled from the first Texas, pilot of the bill through Congress.

The air mail service will be used in some instances to speed the bills and necessary information for the 1927 session.

Passage of the bill and its acceptance by the President was accomplished in the shortest period in history for a tax bill of similar magnitude. Only 81 days elapsed from the time the committee of Congress began consideration of the subject until, in completed form, it was signed by the President's office.

The Treasury today announced several extensions of time for final tax returns to be made for this year's payments.

This was because of the clearance of March 15, when all returns ordinarily would be due.

Citizens and residents of the United States, whose net income exceeds $3,000, and domestic corporations, were given until May 15, or 120 days' extension, in which to file complete returns. They must make tentative returns on or before March 15, together with one-fourth of the estimated amount of tax. American citizens abroad, including military and naval service, and all other persons outside the United States were given until June 15, or three months' extension, to file returns.

REALTORS OPEN BOOM FOR N. E., HUB AND CAPE

600 Guests at Fete See Map of Vacation and Investing World Made Over

Spreading out over a large acreage of white, rolling shattowns and divided into even subdivisions, more than 400 realtors of the Hub district at the mid-Winter fete of the Boston Real Estate Exchange and launched a boom for Boston, Cape Cod and New England, in the order named.

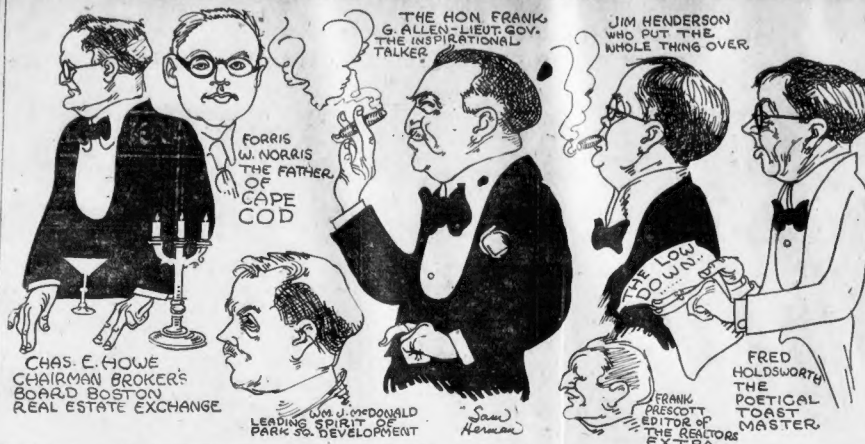

When the last drop of murky merriment had subsided, and the final word had fallen from the lips of the speakers at the Hotel Seawall, the map of the United States had been redrawn in a strictly business manner.

All that showed was Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island and Connecticut with the principal emphasis placed on Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

Florida had been shifted to Nova Scotia and Cape Cod was placed as a better Florida without the palm but with the palm.

Boston had been rededicated, with

PROMINENT REALTORS, AS EVENING AMERICAN ARTIST GLIMPSED THEM

Noted at Dinner

Every reference that was made to the activity on Cape Cod brought much applause, from the Cape enthusiasts present.

Greetings of the Commonwealth were brought to the realtors by Mr. Allen, who is actively interested in Massachusetts realty.

Many of the Hub's leading bankers and insurance men were present to enjoy a social evening with their friends in the real estate game.

One of the architects and several of the builders of the Boston Statler were among those present.

Robert Jamison, Jr., president of the National Association, came from his home in Birmingham, Alabama, to attend the dinner.

All of the leading real estate firms in Boston had separate tables set aside for their sales organizations.

The only accident at the dinner which was noticeable was when Frank Cook, "the dumb waiter" failed to properly maneuver his serving tray and the contents were received by some of the guests at the head table.

PEABODY

A big Union Station "somewhere," a big new postoffice building adjoining, and with the zoning holes left by the antiquated North and South Stations being utilized temporarily for the dumping of snow that hasn't been dumped.

Large parcels of health were being given away free to every Summer visitor in the New England terrain.

Everywhere in "the United States that counts," home dwellers owned the homes they dwell in, and they were not flimsy structures, but sturdy buildings, erected by realtors.

Throughout New England a soft strain of music was being sounded by the murmuring pipes and the hemlocks.

The world had come to recognize New England for what it is, with the advantages it offers. Nor was this all merely their pleasure; for the realtors have liquidated down to reveal the true New England as a true land of promise and to boost Boston in coming New England for "booster" as the word.

TART BOMB.

Arthur N. Madison, president of the Boston Real Estate Exchange, presiding at the meeting, started the movement at the dinner, arranged in the most vivid manner of James D. Henderson, of Henderson & Ross. It was carried along by Fred Holdsworth, the toastmaster, in and former Governor of New Hampshire John H. Bartlett, now first assistant postmaster-general, put on the finishing touches in their addresses.

The remaining speaker was Robert Jamison, Jr., president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards and native of Birmingham, Ala., who told of the work the national body is doing throughout the country.

At the head table, in addition to these speakers, were Postmaster-General and M. H. Baker, of Maryland; of Stamford, Conn., first vice-president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards; Harry T. Turner of Lynn, president of the Massachusetts Association of Real Estate Boards.

Charles E. Lee, executive secretary of the Boston Real Estate Exchange; Charles E. Howe, chairman of the brokers' board of the Exchange; James Mason, Rothwell, chairman of the Building Owners' and Managers' Association of the Boston Real Estate Exchange; and Frederick O. Woodruff, prominent Hub realty broker.

URGENT CO-OPERATION.

President Madison suggested that the realtors advertise Boston real estate investments more and that they use in all their "ads" the slogan "Invest in Boston real estate."

Realtors, he said, should co-operate with the city planning board and with municipal government generally in the making of cities beautiful—especially Boston.

Trustmaster Holdsworth, unveiling a veritable 2,000-foot frontage of verse, began introducing his speakers, first giving credit to Charles Pond for starting all booms.

Lieut. Gov. Allen then sketched out for the band leaders the vast improvements the Commonwealth had effected in the way of conducting its business and finances during the past eight years, with a resulting letting up on tax pressure on property holders and with more relief to come.

He made also an appeal to the realtors to interest themselves more in politics and to bring about a government in Massachusetts by the people, through setting out the merits of the majority of the registered voters who never are checked off as well as on the ballot.

NEW P. O. IN BACK BAY

The new postoffice idea was brought by Assistant Postmaster General Bartlett. He said that movement of mail to work hampered in Boston through traffic congestion and because there are two railroad stations. There should be only one Union Station.

A new postoffice building is in contemplation in the Back Bay, he said, because that district is being

Why Buy Real Estate? Listen to Experts

ROBERT JAMISON, JR., President, National Association of Real Estate Boards—Real estate is the basis of all wealth, and more fortunes are made with it than in any other phase of human endeavor.

ARTHUR N. MADISON, President, Boston Real Estate Exchange—If you buy real estate, you can see what you are buying and you can watch your purchase increase in value.

WILLIAM J. McDONALD, President, W. J. McDonald Company—Because values are much lower in Boston than in any other corresponding city of like caliber in this country greater returns are given the investor in realty.

JAMES D. HENDERSON, of Henderson & Ross—The activity on Cape Cod is an example of the awakening and appreciation that is coming about in Massachusetts realty, it sounds the warning to buy now.

FORRIS W. NORRIS, President, F. W. Norris Company—The prosperity of the entire country means that real estate is bound to show a large appreciation, and really is the foundation of all investments.

GEORGE A. OILL, President, G. A. Oill Company—Now is the opportune time to purchase real estate before the spring advance in prices comes about and this is especially true of seashore properties.

CHARLES E. HOWE, President, Chas. E. Howe Company—Never in the history of real estate has the investor been presented with so many exceptional opportunities, 1926 will be a record year.

FRANK ROSS, Henderson & Ross—There never has been a permanent recession of realty values and the commercial growth of the nation at the present time indicates greatly enhanced realty values.

FRED HOLDSWORTH, of Holdsworth & Farrington—Any property which is carefully purchased in Boston or the suburbs is bound to enjoy an unusual increment because of Boston's splendid growth.

D. BRADLEE RICH, President, D. Bradlee Rich Company—Real estate at the present time is the safest investment in this country because it is the fundamental value which underlies every government bond.

JAMES M. ROTHWELL, President, James M. Rothwell Company—You can't sell real estate when times are bad, so you always have your investment.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Three Drawing Rooms on Calendar of Court of St. James

VARIOUS BOSTON MATRONS AND MAIDS (these last even to the sub-debutante) are quite thrilled to learn that there will be three drawing rooms on the calendar of the Court of St. James this Spring. The exact dates will be announced shortly, these all-important functions to take place after Easter, when the prescribed period of mourning for the late Queen Mother has ended.

TO BE PRESENTED at Court, to don the regulation dress of the three ostrich plumes of the Prince of Wales is to escape the desire of countless girlish hearts and to add a specially notable group will make a survey to royalty sponsored by the American Ambassador.

MIS ELOISE LAWRENCE, sub-debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fanning Ayer, is a very fortunate young girl for whom the calendar of Court presentation will precede her entrance into local fashioning's giddy whirl.

SHE, WITH MISS ANNE AYER, sub-debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fanning Ayer, is now in Paris under the care of a chaperon for a final year of study and travel before they become full-fledged ladies, and without doubt Miss Lawrence's trip to Buckingham Palace will be shared by Miss Ayer.

FOR THIS MOST important journey Mrs. John B. Lawrence plans to be with her daughter in London, and goes over to the British capital where she has a host of friends in diplomatic and Court circles some time in early May.

JUST NOW Mrs. Lawrence is en route to Palm Beach to be the house guest of Mrs. John Mages of New York for a time at the latter's carefree life at the noted Southern spot. She will be gone for some weeks.

AND, MEANWHILE, Mr. Lawrence with Edwin Furman, quince and other passengers of note in high financial and official circles are putting in an interval of fishing round about Boca Key in Florida, as guests of Franklin Pierce.

NEWPORT IS stirring somewhat from its lethargy of mid-winter quiet and already whippersnaws are heard of noisy lawlenses whose flights will show at one or another of the expensive villas set in garden-cultured beauty in world-known avenues.

THE JAMES E. A. CLARK, who have Boston affiliations (Mrs. Clark was Evelyn Shustell), are planning to open Wentworth House early in the coming season. Mr. Clark has been putting in the last days at Newport with his son, John, dig-wagon Clark.

MRS. CLARK, rated as one of the Newport beauties and in Newport such a title indicates high aristocratic distinction, is a daughter of Countess Buxton, now of Malvern House, Devon, Mrs. Clark's husband, makes her home in England.

ANOTHER NEWPORT is which is due for early opening in that of Mr. and Mrs. Alma Johnson. They will occupy Amherst Hall, on the Ocean Drive. Mrs. Johnson was Miss Margaret Hoffman, daughter of Mr. Charles P. Hoffman, now living in London.

ARTHUR CHENEY TRAIN, the author, at his recent reading at the Art Association rooms, proved to be highly interesting and entertaining. His topic was "What We Read," about which he, as a popular author, is, of course, very well informed.

MR. TRAIN is a Newport newcomer, so to speak, making his bow to the social set in a review of glory as the new husband of Mrs. Helen Carter Gerard whose late husband was Sumner Gerard, a brother of the James Watson Gerard, who was American Ambassador to Germany.

REMEMBER also in Newport last Summer about Commodore Nathaniel Barnard Ayer and a new champion for the Eastern Yacht Club are more delightfully verified by the latest announcement for the Regatta's grand leader.

THE FAMOUS old "Queen Mac" that romped home with so many cups to her credit is now the property of Horace Hines, and his commodore's wife and have purchased her up with a handsome "re-equipment" that promises to be a "money addition to the local racing set."

IN FACT, there's rare sport ahead with a hull for some time. The racing set will be glad to see the old "Queen Mac" and her crew. The hull is a fine one and the crew is a fine one. The hull is a fine one and the crew is a fine one.

THE LOVE STORY OF A BOSTON GIRL WHO WANTS ONLY ONE MAN--and the Husband Who Strayed

The Love Story of a Boston Girl Who Wants Only One Man--and the Husband Who Strayed

"I'm not so sure that I care enough for Ran Phelps to tie myself up to him for life," said Fay to Sylvia.

READ THIS FIRST
SYLVIA STARR, who looks like a flirt, but isn't one, is engaged to marry RANDALL PHELPS. One afternoon he phones her at the Public Library, where she works, and asks her to meet him to talk over a matter of great importance.

Sylvia waits for him in the Public Garden for almost an hour. When he finally arrives he tells her that he has fallen in love with her best friend, FAY SHIRLEY, and wants to marry her in June. June was the month when he was to have married Sylvia.

Dazed, Sylvia wanders around for hours before she goes home to Aunt Agony, nicknamed AUNT AGONY, who has brought her up. She tells her the news of the broken engagement and Aunt Agony rejoices because she thinks Ranney would make a very bad husband for any girl, and especially a girl who worships him as Sylvia does.

She predicts that in a week or two Sylvia will have put Ranney out of her mind and be getting her cap for a new beau, and seems to be cheerful because the affair between Sylvia and Ranney is over. But the next morning when Fay, who lives across the street, comes over to tell Sylvia how Ranney happened to fall in love with her, Aunt Agony puts her out of the house.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

Copyright, 1934 Johnson Pictures Int.
CHAPTER III.
SYLVIA didn't see Fay Shirley again for more than a month. But so far as that went, she didn't see much of anybody. It was Fay who had broken the engagement, but Aunt Agony and Peter Wilk were the brother of Aunt Agony's very niece woman friend, Sarah Wilk.

Peter Wilk was an old maid and Peter was a young bachelor. He was 31--almost nine years old as then Sylvia. But he didn't seem older to her. He had a ready laugh and a boyish enthusiasm for doing all the things that Sylvia liked best to do--hunting and dancing and going to concerts and theatre.

Two or three times a week he would come into the Public Library where Sylvia was at work and wait until it was time for him to take her home. And then, instead of going home they would go somewhere for dinner, perhaps, and for a long walk afterward.

From these long walks through the lamp-lit street under the starlit sky Sylvia would come home to her room too tired to do anything but sleep--too tired to even think of Ranney, sometimes--or at least, to think of him for very long, or to cry about him.

She had done nothing but cry for the first week or two after they ended their engagement. And her eyes had been perpetually red and swollen with her tears, and her nose red and swollen too.

Then, on the afternoon of the second Sunday, Peter had come to take her for a ride in his new car, and she had actually enjoyed herself. After that she saw him almost every day.

"I'd have gone crazy these last few weeks if it hadn't been for Peter Wilk," she said, soberly, to Aunt Agony one Sunday morning as they lingered over their breakfast coffee. "Every time I've begun to feel blue about--about things, he's done something or other to take my mind off myself. Really, he's the very nicest man I've ever known."

Aunt Agony pursed up her dry lips as if she were getting ready to say "brine and prisms."

But instead she remarked shortly and to the point: "Yes, and if a woman's fool enough to get married, there's a real man--not a silly giggle like Randall Phelps!"

GOOD PETER
Sylvia shut her eyes and drew a deep, quick breath. The sound of Ranney's name still cut her to the heart. It made her remember what she was trying to forget--the way he looked, and the sound of his voice and his laugh, the things that he said and didn't mean.

And then she thought of Peter--good old Peter, who was anything but good-looking and fascinating with all his irregular features and his tall, lean figure.

"Peter's so homely," she murmured.

Aunt Agony's eyebrows shot up into her hair. "Homely," "handsome" is as handsome does," she quoted. Sylvia put up and left the room. Much as she loved Aunt Agony there were times when she couldn't stand her. This was one of those times.

From the window of her living room on the other side of the hall she saw a familiar car roll up before the Shirley's big brown house, and she knew that it was Ranney.

WAVE HANS TO 10-YEAR POLAR FLIGHT

ACE WE'RE PREPARING FOR TRIP

Globe-Circling Flier Intends to Take an All-American Crew on Dash to North

The exploration and scientific flight of Lieutenant Hugh Wade to the Arctic, starting next Summer, may cover two to three years, he told the Boston Evening American today when he arrived in Boston.

Lieutenant Wade, globe-circling ace pilot, "Boston" in the World Circuit, came to the city to confer with Lieutenant Robert Brown, Jr., commander of the Boston Airport and chairman of the World Flight Committee, looking upon the world flier as an authority.

Lieutenant Wade, in their respective fields are being sought to accompany the Arctic flier over the million square miles of unexplored frozen territory. Lt. Wade declared, and fifteen men will be taken from three to five specially built planes.

Some time in June it is hoped to test the spook-making expedition under way.

PLAN FOR LONG STAY.
"It's nothing the importance of the expedition and what it means to the United States and to the world in general," Lt. Wade explained. "The flight is by no means a joy ride in the Polar Regions. Preparations for the gigantic undertaking are being made with the utmost precision along military lines."

"We are organizing in a manner not only to discover new lands but to exist in the north. It is a new scientific knowledge about the Arctic as much as possible."

"Here, we are not taking our trip in terms of one year, but of two to three years. In the connection I am conversing with Lieutenant Brown today, realizing that he is an expert and highly familiar with the preparations, which should be made for major operations of this kind."

"Russia is not lenient of the strategic value of the land at the top of the earth and an expedition is reported to be under way to explore the polar regions."

ALL-AMERICAN CREW.
"The personnel and equipment of the flight will be entirely American. After looking over the entire field we are forced to the conclusion that the United States offers the best available anywhere in the world for our purpose."

"We will have specially built planes. They will be supplied by Donald Douglas, foremost designer and builder of weight-carrying airplanes in the world."

"The plane designer is a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and designed the 'Boeing' plane piloted around the world by With Lieutenant Wade in Boston was Robert Adolph Bone, Harvard and M. T. graduates, son of a Boston family and an organizer of the Arctic flight with a thorough knowledge of the Arctic.

A MONEY-PAID FOR PEOPLE WHO THINK

SECOND SECTION

QUEEN'S COUNSEL

LOOK FORWARD, NOT BACK

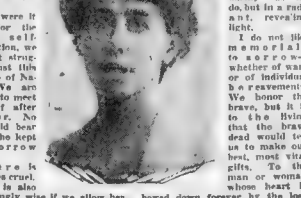

SOME people, I fear, some women especially, make a glory of carrying their mourning about with them everywhere. I respect those who do not for get their dead who build no in their souls a temple of memory to those they have loved. But Nature has arranged that time shall gradually lessen our sorrow, as a skin gradually reforms itself over a wound. We must not dwell more slowly or more quickly on the cord of the death of the wound.

But, were it only for the sake of self preservation, we must not dwell on the past. We are destined to meet one grief after another. No man could bear them if he kept each sorrow fresh.

It is a mistake to be sometimes cruel. But also it is a mistake to be sometimes kind. If we allow her fair play, she leads us on from day to day, tempting us with new hopes, planting in us new desires, drawing us little by little away from the grave of our dead and our dead griefs.

There is a ruthlessness about Nature which has both the right and the duty to do so. In the great operations of fate, bowed down forever by the loss of a loved one, I give my sympathy. But to him or her who dries away the tears, throws back the shoulders and marches on with a smile, I give my admiration and my cheer!

Never your dead, but keep your face turned toward dawn, never matter how glorious may have been the setting sun.

DEATH IS SIGNALLED BY PHONE

A signal light from the room of Frank R. Cox, U. S. Customs officer, flashed on the telephone switchboard of the Hotel Argonne in the West End last night, but the operator got no response when she plugged in.

When Joseph Dufresne went to investigate he found Cox unconscious. He was dead before a doctor arrived.

It is believed Cox died from natural causes, having suffered a shock and being just able to lift the receiver from the hook before he fell unconscious.

CAT SAVES FIVE FROM FLAMES

Only a cat was "Toby" until today--or have it kiddy, if you will--but through an ordeal of fire and smoke Toby has emerged as a hero. His rescuing in the early hours awakened his mistress, Mrs. Arthur Carver, on the second floor of the house at No. 115 Aspen avenue, in Dorchester, and she found the room filled with smoke.

Around her husband, they race downstairs and routed out Mr. and Mrs. Jackson and their son Jackson, Jr., all five fleeing the burning home with "Toby."

Firemen confined the fire to the cellar, where it is believed to have started from spontaneous combustion in some oil cans. Damage will total $1,000.

stop. Ranny's ear, and presently Ranny himself got out of it and stood on the curbstone smoking a cigar.

"You don't suppose he's taking Fay to church, do you?" Aunt Agony called shrilly from the dining room.

Sylvia made some kind of noise in her throat by way of answer.

She wasn't thinking of Aunt Agony or what Aunt Agony was saying. Her eyes and thoughts were on the man who stood across the street.

He had thrown away his cigar and, with his hands in his pockets, he was standing still, looking straight across the street at the tall, gloomy house where Sylvia lived. His eyes seemed almost to melt her own through the net curtains that hid her from him.

Her hand went out to pull aside the curtain and only the value of Aunt Agony, close behind her, stopped her from doing that piece of impulsive foolishness.

RANNY GAWKS

"Now what do you suppose he's standing over there, gawking at this house like that for?" she asked, severely. "I suppose he's getting tired of Miss Mrs. Shirley and would like to get on the soft side of you again! I told you he didn't know how to be true to one girl at a time, didn't I? And if Fay Shirley really wants him she'd better not wait until June to marry him. A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush."

It was that afternoon that Fay telephoned Sylvia for the first time in four weeks.

"What are you doing?" she asked. Getting dressed to go for a drive with Peter Wilks, Sylvia told her. "Why?"

"Oh, nothing, but I just thought you might like to go for a walk with me," Fay answered. "There are two or three things I'd like to talk over with you. I don't dare come over your house since that morning when Agony put me out."

Sylvia considered. She had really been looking forward to the drive with Peter. But she was wildly curious to know what it was that Fay wanted to talk to her about. And besides, she liked Fay better than she liked anyone except Ranny and Aunt Agony, and she had missed her almost as much as she had missed Ranny this last dreadful month.

All right, I'll call Peter up and ask him over for dinner instead of driving with him," she said.

When she telephoned Peter he was disappointed, and said so. "I wanted to take you out to Framingham and show you a little Irish terrier I was going to buy," he explained. "I thought you might like him to go on walks with you when I was tied up and couldn't go along to take care of you."

"Oh, Peter, how blessed you are!" Sylvia told him. She was very sorry now that she had promised Fay that she would go walking with her. But I couldn't help it. I was at the house anyway. Aunt Agony hates dogs, and Judith is scared to death of them. I shall be here at 6 o'clock for dinner."

Is there a certain type of girl who wants a man just for the sport of taking him away from another woman? And what about the man who has given up the real thing for the imitation? Fay Shirley says that there is a difference in a man wanting to make love to a girl and being in love with her. In the next installment Sylvia begins to believe that a man who lets a girl pass over his head is a fool.

Who is Ranny Phelps really in love with, after all?

For all her 22 years Sylvia Starr was still a helpless baby in the eyes of her maiden aunt and protector.

They walked to the Public Garden. In the mall the bushes were beginning to come out into leaf, and the green iron bench where Sylvia had sat with Ranny Phelps so many, many times, was almost hidden from view. She wondered if he ever brought Fay here.

It was of Ranny that both of them were thinking as they sat down and watched the people who passed along the crunching gravel path, arm in arm.

"How do you like this hat, Sylvia?" Fay asked, giving the brim of her tiny green hat a touch with her long finger.

"Stunning. Very smart. Indeed, it really is a very good hat."

"The girls all burst into tears when I wore it to the card club last week," Fay went on.

Then she added, slowly and deliberately, "I bought it for my wedding trip."

Sylvia's deep violet eyes darkened with wonder.

Fay was wearing a new suit, too, a smooth, slender garment of hunt or green that matched the cunning little hat.

"That's a new suit you have on, isn't it?" she asked.

FAY UNCERTAIN

Fay nodded. "Yeah, I bought this for my wedding trip, too. I told you I liked it. It matches my eyes well, doesn't you?"

Sylvia was silent. "What are you wearing the things for your troupe now for?" she asked, at last. "It is supposed to be had just to put on the things for your honeymoon before you're married. Didn't you know that?"

The other girl gave her a long look from her green eyes.

"I'm not so sure that I'm going to go on a honeymoon for a while," she said in a low tone. "The closer I get to matrimony the less I like the looks of it."

Sylvia could only stare at her. It was unthinkable that a girl could have Ranny for a husband and then hesitate about taking him.

"But your wedding day! It's only five weeks away," she said, finally. "You'd better be making up your mind what you want to do pretty soon."

Fay shrugged her slim shoulders.

"I don't suppose I really will make up my mind until the last minute," she said, outlining her mouth with her lipstick. "Maybe I'll keep Ranny waiting at the church. Who knows? I certainly don't! Sometimes I adore him and sometimes I hate him. I'm afraid I do. Did you see him staring across the street at your house this morning when he was waiting to take me to church?"

Sylvia nodded her head.

"Well, you must be doing that for," Fay asked with a kind of anger in her husky voice, "unless he's all crazy about you? I think he is!"

"He is!" Sylvia said. "I think he is!"

Mirage---Hands Across the Continent

THE grim, old, gray Atlantic, with its snow-manned sea horses riding high and fast, his gray hair glittering with ice, is violating his law, the South Pacific Sea, where also lies blue and dreaming up into the sky, shimmering in the sun, around the land of Southern California.

The gray old, hard-ripped in the frozen arctic he loves, looks with a soft heart while the glowers for the blue maid who spreads her luminous silk and lace beyond the mounds and rocks of the lovely coast, two thousand miles away.

Here the wind cries and cuts, the great flakes float out of a battle-ship gray sky; there no leaves in the woods--the branches rattle in their casting of ice like mournful bones; the Sea is great and terrible; the open motors look like empty houses with the widows blowing out and a few blue gulls in-dwelling; little kids are cutting Lowery twigs on the country ponds and the girls, all Ransels in furs and barbaric colors, are milling round and round the rims.

The real winter girl in the hills of the Atlantic State, up to the eyes in "comforts," mistle and hoar, is pouting about on the snows and snows and going "um-am-buster" down the hills like the little chaps, and enjoying it fully as much as they do.

But out there! Where the silken blue sea rolls in under its moonlight with each far wave alive with the fire of phosphores. In the gleam of a metal shield, and the girls in their frocks are dashed out into the sea-side walks from the ballroom and in again! Ah! No wonder the Sea of California is the Sea of Boston's and New York's love!

We here, in our fur and wool, straighten up at our play or work and through the frosty snow, see a mirage--all gold and blue. It is to be seen in mackinaw. There, you are wading the blue water bathing suit, under the sun and warm sky! --NELL BRINKLEY.

Avoid Poorly Balanced Breakfasts

That's Where the Great Dietary Mistake is made

If YOU feel tired, hungry, "edge-rattled" hours before breakfast, jump to the conclusion of poor health. Thousands have energetic mornings because they start the day with wrong breakfasts.

To feel right, you must have a well-balanced, complete meal--lunch and dinner--you get it. But breakfast is a hurried meal, often badly chosen.

Thus Quaker Oats; containing 16% protein, food's great tissue builder, 50% carbohydrate, its great energy agent, plus all-important vitamins and the "bulk" that makes laxatives eddow needed, is the dietary urge of the world today.

It is food that "stands by" you through the morning. Quaker Oats cooks in 3 to 5 minutes. That's faster than plain toast. Don't day yourself the natural stimulation the rich food offers you.

Making of a Husband

AND sister Kathie can't do a thing for Zekie because she has her brood of five children to look after--of course. "It is up to Arlette. Stupid, isn't it?"

"Natural," I replied, going on to say almost before I was aware of having formulated the thought: "And is Arlette smart enough to handle any of 'Emperor Zekie's affairs?"

"She's smart enough to get and man to believe in her," Jeanie said tartly. "Stub makes me fearfully cross by spelling her until there's no putting her in her place. He treats her as if she were a little princess--not a serving maid."

"May some like a queen," I confessed. "Those slutties are really unusual--quite remarkable."

"Now don't you begin raving about Arlette," Jeanie said pettishly. "This is the first time in ages that I've enjoyed sitting to Stub for my portrait. Generally Arlette is there and irritates me so I get lines between my brows and then Stub can't paint me at all."

"What does he think of your attitude toward Arlette?" I asked.

"He thinks the lines come from 'treachery,'" Jeanie said back with an impish grin, which was followed by a snarl as she asked:

"What attitude are you instilling? I haven't jealousy surely. I wouldn't believe myself by being jealous of a servant. If Nicholas Perry wanted to flirt with his little 'emulatory maid, he could and would. I wouldn't think of him that way."

What bothers me is that he has a fine, fatherly attitude toward the little irritate and that I feel she takes advantage of it as she would of anything else that redounded to her benefit. Of course, since May he so busy with Zekie, Arlette is a bit neglected, and I know she has felt left out in the cold ever since it came to pass for Stub. So naturally she would turn to-- time dare scheme up your slaves, and then you can buy clothes so you could spend several times the amount they cost. And then you dare to put yourself on the hook for a million dollars? You're kidding me!"

Jeanie broke off abruptly. A dark flush died her cheeks. Her look of self-consciousness was stark.

What's the use of arguing with a woman who stoops to such mendacity?

"Tricks!" Hilda was bewitched. "What do you mean by tricks?"

"Tricks," said the man, "are tricks. Hitting his chest because he saw that the man on the verge of tears was a woman, and then he says, 'I'll make her cry.' A good trick? A bad trick? It's a trick, and that's all."

She said, "I don't care. I don't care he was told. Accept his judgment as final! He was the head of that company, and he was going to prove it several times a week."

Getting a Divorce

"Fred Maoney," I'll repeat just what I said when we closed this column, "is a man who is going to be economically independent. If you can't trust your partner in business, you get rid of him. Just so you can get a divorce. You've lived with me for eleven years. If you haven't found out by now that I'm a man who can't be trusted, you've lived with me for twelve years. I've been a man for twenty years, and whether or not I can be trusted is a matter of fact. It's not a matter of opinion—emphasis on the opinion, if you please—then you had better get out of my house."

"I want to dissolve this firm first," I said with only a faint smile.

He said, "I'll dissolve this firm first."

mean?"

"I'll tell you how I'm going to get my lawyer and I have to get you him—here you have better get your pants on."

"I will and don't talk as much about paying everything you owe!"

"You're right, I will. I'll be right back. See you. She rose from her chair, and I saw her go. It is definitely as I find that we are to get a divorce. We had better live apart until this divorce is granted. I am not sure we won't ask you to leave our home—see you!"

"I'll go."

"I'll wait an hour, later, carrying a suitcase and a carry bag. I'll be back in half an hour. It is their fifteenth anniversary."

"Fred watched her go. He felt depressed. He was not sure if he had heard the taxi chugging down the street. He was not sure if he had across his eyes and realized with an odd, aching sensation at the back of his head that he was not dreaming after eating too much chicken for a supper. The door had definitely happened. Fred had left him."

Kicked the Rug.

She dropped her suitcase in a chair and went to the door. She had told her that a separation was not the best thing for both of them. At the door she had seen that she hadn't. He given her a beautiful home, good clothes, plenty to eat and drink. She had been married to him for fifteen years.
